SEED MARKET NEWS

VOL. I SLATE SEED COMPANY, INC., SOUTH BOSTON, VIRGINIA NO. 1

This Year Buy Early

Aside from many evident shortages in seed crops this year, we are faced with a problem in transportation, therefore an early order will reach us before limited stocks are sold out and give us time to get the seed to you before it is too late to plant.

The farmers of this country must prepare as never before for a crop. The world is looking to us for food and you and your efforts will provide the foundation for our fighting machine. It then becomes both good business and good patriotism to plant liberally and cultivate diligently.

We expect an enormous demand for seed this year. The dry season last year, coupled with increased planting this year, is sure to make heavier than usual demands for seed. This in the face of many shortages in seed crops will make some items very hard to secure.

We pledge you our best efforts to supply your needs and to get the goods to you on time, so far as possible. But we do ask your co-operation by avoiding a last minute rush.

WRITE FOR A NEW LIST

It is our intention to publish this bulletin every month during the spring season, oftener if market changes make it necessary. So whenever you want revised prices on any items listed here, just drop us a postal card requesting a new copy of this list. It is free and we are glad to mail upon request. If you watch market trends, it may save you many dollars on your seed purchases by enabling you to buy items ahead of market advances.

Seed Outlook For 1942

As a whole the seed supply is good. In spite of adverse weather conditions many crops made excellent yields. Then in other items where a failure was made in one section of the country, another would make a good crop and thus prevent serious shortage. This is particularly true of Lespedeza. In this county we grow a fair quantity of Lespedeza for seed. On some farms the crop failed to make seed and none was harvested at all. On other farms the crop was excellent. The average local yield will be about normal.

The best analysis we can get at this time of the Field Seed situation is that all clovers will be in limited supply, with probably higher prices near planting time. This is also true of many of the more important grasses. Seed Corn, Cow Peas and Soy Beans should be sufficient for our needs, but grain prices will make them some higher than last year. Seed oats of some varieties will be scarce and hard to get. The spring sorts probably will be more plentiful, but we expect an enormous demand for oats due to the fact that almost none were seeded last fall. Potatoes and Onion sets will both be higher, but the supply should be sufficient for the demand.

In vegetable seeds we are faced with a few serious shortages. Beets and snap beans are probably the most critical. The beet seed crop was a total failure and many of the best snap beans have made ten to twenty per cent yields. Some of the smaller items will probably be scarce, but throughout our catalog you will find practically the same prices that we published last year. We advance our prices only when forced to do so.

Flower seed will probably be harder hit by poor yields than any other item. For years America has bought a large part of her flower seed in Europe, and since this supply is cut off, we are having a hard time producing enough stock for the demand. We have been unable to secure an absolute check on what will be available, so many items that we list may be short on your order.
